

Living with age-related macular degeneration? We can help.

If you or someone you love has been diagnosed with AMD, you may not be sure what this means for your day-to-day activities. If you're having trouble reading, recognizing faces or colors or seeing objects in fine detail, there are a world of products that can help.

hand-held magnifiers

Read your favorite paper or use the built-in light to better see menus in restaurants.

try it out

Our experienced associates offer low vision evaluations, advice on finding the right vision aid for your needs or help trying out products.

Contact us.

Call us today to set up an appointment:
336-245-5672

Community Low Vision Center

Monday-Friday
9:00am - 4:00pm

7730 North Point Blvd
Winston-Salem, NC 27106

To learn more scan the QR code or visit

CommunityLowVision.org

Community
Low Vision
Center /

Making the most of your vision.

how do you know when it is time for a visit?

Maybe you're having trouble reading recipes on your phone, or road signs as you drive. Changes in vision can be frustrating and confusing.

There's a whole world of resources out there beyond glasses and contact lenses. Our adaptive devices are designed specifically for low vision, and they'll help you return to the lifestyle you're used to.

what to expect when you visit

Our associates will sit with you, asking questions to learn more about your current lifestyle, the changes you are experiencing, and what you're looking for. You'll be able to try out adaptive devices as we work together to make a plan for adjusting and getting back to life as usual. You might have questions about low vision in general, support groups or re-entering the workforce. We can help with that too.

The first step is easy, call one of the Community Low Vision Centers. We'll ask a few questions to better understand your situation, and then we'll set you up with an appointment.

products

- Hand-held magnifiers
- Talking clocks
- Large-print calendars
- Kitchen aids
- Specialty lamps
- Reading aids
- Video magnifiers
- Computer software

Visit us today to shop our full selection!

services

- Low vision evaluations
- Training on adaptive technology
- Training on customizing your phone with larger text and voice over to help with daily tasks
- Product demonstrations

